HONGKONG, NOVEMBER STR., 1878.

THE Japanese trade with Corea, which though small was steadily developing, seems likely in its early youth to be strangled by the greedy and senseless, action of the Corean Government. The trade. not a particularly lucrative one, and can ill bear any heavy impost. The exports mainly consist of ox-hides, bones, serweed, ginseng, and some other trifles, and the imports of cotton piece goods and some cheap articles of foreign manufacture. The Government of Corea has lately imposed a tax of fully twenty per cent. on both exports and imports, which amounts in effect to a prohibition on the trade with Japan, for the natives, unable to pay it, have been compelled to take back their goods to the interior, and are unable to purchase any goods from the Japanese merchants. Trade has consequently ceased, several firms have closed their establishments, and unless the impost be removed, the Japanese Settlement at Fusan will soon have to be Hon. T. C. Hayllar, Q.C., and Mr. Ng Choy. vacated. The obstructive policy of the Gorormmont has been carried even further. Rice is very cheap in Corea, and it would seem there is a surplus that might be exported, but to prevent this the Authorities have prohibited the sale of the grain in large quantities to the Japanese. Altogether the Corean Government is manifesting a most unfriendly spirit, and infringing the spirit of its treaty with Japan in a glaring manner. The newsof this cavalier treatment of her morchants and traders has only just reached Japan, and it is not stated in what light it is regarded at Tokio, but it is not probable that the Japanese Government will submit to such an attempt to nullify the treaty and drive its subjects out of Fusan. Corea is hardly worth the cost and trouble of subjugation, but its rulers certainly require humbling and chastising. It must be trying to Japanese patience to put up with the overbearing conduct of the Coreans, and it would not be surprising if the MIRADO's Government resorted to a stern and imperative policy towards ment with hard labour. He points out that they park a sweeping curve to the northward dinary southern boundary of the Gulf Stream rom longitude 65 degree west. In his repassage the captain found himself in Stream when 60 miles south of its supgaed limits, in longitude 54 degrees. The tream was found to be the same distance sout! of its marked boundary up to 57 degrees. It is his opinion that there is no such curve. The weather was fine. The captain had simed to keep clear of the Stream, as it has the effect of driving back easels bound westward. This discovery if correct, will prove important to shipmasters, as all reasels coming from the Mediterranean by the middle passage that is between the parallels atitude 30deg, and 40deg. are in danger of run, ning into the Stream, when they are led by the charts to imagine that they are 60 miles south of it. DICTIONARY WITH THE PUTTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Pres Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in costono. Each and every word is Cathedral. fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Purti pronunciations are given, the accents being exefully marked on the best principle hitherto strained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving colearness not previously and vacant spaces which have heretofere charactorized Chinese publications. For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a perion who understands English to communicate efectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect DAVID CORSAR & SONS the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in Rogland and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

attained, and dispening with those vast margins

To illustrate the rest scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese obaracten, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, demile all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appli-cations and equivalents of different words which POLICIES granted on MARINE RISKS to all have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as

The attention of owners, agents, and charterers of steamers is drawn to the provisions of The Post Office Ordinance, 1876, which comes into force on the 23rd instant. Under the old Ordinance no notice was renired of the departure of a vessel if not advertised, nor of departures for Canton or Macao. Notice is now required of any departure, though with regard to sailing ships, the old rule will practically remain in force, that notice need not be sent unless asked for. Section XXV. requires that the first notice be sent to the Post Office. In the case of steamers plying regularly or on fixed days; notice of any change in the day or hour will be sufficient. Stamped correspondence may still be sent on

tificial polish to such pictures of low life in through-France, a growing influence of the Spanish theatre on English comedy. In Spain comedy was formed almost exclusively upon Comedy left the followship of all the Muses, to become the commade of a satur dressed in a Court suit. The grand sincerity tout had marked tragedy when at her wildest in the old poetic days gave way to conventional artifice and empty monthings, to which the poet's soul had little to contribute, and in Corneille—and to Corneille in his second and The "candles" of the Jablochkoff and Lontin Skreellings. But where are their bones? worse manner-than to Shukespeare. When, after a time, more substance came into our comedies, that was due not to a deeper insight into life, but to the influence of the great genius of Molière. French enticismmuch astray, and holding itself faultlessintroduced shallow conceit into the judgments of the English courtier who aspired to the fashionable title of a man of sense, or wit, or parts. It was creditable to have such aspiration, to affect the virtue of a care for letters, and make it a fashion to encourage wit. Unhappily there was a low conception of the spirit of good literature, and the formalist was critic of its form. Every fop thought he could mend Shakespeare. Good poets, bad poets, and men who were no poets at all dressed Shakespeare's plays afresh, to make them what the shallow poets of their own age -the French classical Midases and clever rakes-considered to be passable. These men had no power over the real strength of the English people, which was as marked in the time of Charles II. as in years before.
